Segrave and Gar Wood Ready for Speed Trials

Gar Wood, left, and Mayor Segrave, holder of world's auto speed record, are perfectly frank with each other in their efforts to drive their speedboats to new records at Miami, Fla. "Miss England," the specially built boat which Segrave brought from England, is expected to do better than 100 miles per hour.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 20—Great Britain's sleek white challenge boat—S England—and her doughty pilot, Maj. H. O. D. Segrave, were all set today for their bid for international speedboat honors. Between them and the laurels now sought stood the veteran speed boat champion, Gar Wood, of Detroit, and his world champion boat, Miss America VII.

Both Segrave and Wood have made trial runs over the 10½ mile course where the Miami Beach regatta will be run today and tomorrow. Both said their boats were in satisfactory shape. Segrave expressed himself as quite satisfied with the performance of Miss England in her last trial runs.

The international races in the Miami Beach regatta will determine whether Segrave, who holds the world speed record at a trifle more than 98 miles an hour, can further add to his laurels.

But Jennie—prize of a troupe of elephants owned by a circus which wintered near here for years—succumbed to old age and illness and the tots will miss her.

Oil and Trade Wars

Oil once a convenient product obtained from whales and other animal or vegetable sources has become a world wide necessity on which the fate of nations may depend

The world now using more than 1 000 000 000 barrels a year has found itself heavily dependent on oil for industry transportation and defense so that financiers of the leading powers have combined in an unprecedented international movement to control it before production gets out of hand with disastrous consequences

The romance which has developed from the prosaic commodity is set forth by an economic expert in the Review of Reviews It is a story of personalities developed individually by the great powers to meet a problem which was rapidly getting beyond control

The importance with which the powers have invested oil is aptly illustrated by the statement that no backward or small country which suddenly finds itself rich in this resource can feel confident of its political security

The United States at present produces seventy per cent of the world output with the newly developed Venezuela fields furnishing out $1 per cent Russia 13 Mexico 6 Persia 2 9 Roumania 2 2 and the remainder scattered among about a score of countries all over the world Yet the United States consumes the bulk of what it produces imports from Mexico balancing what is exported

The situation has resulted in a worldwide search for oil and the discovery that instead of alarmist reports of a few years ago of early depletion there are vast untapped resources Over production it is pointed out threatened at once so that the financial geniuses of the leading powers have joined in a unique combination to prevent the economic waste of flooding the world with oil and at the same time to maintain the nations involved in the international production at a figure rate of their own safety

In Defense of Chicago.

[illegible] made by Representative [illegible] Illinois in a recent [illegible] Congressional Record is [illegible] of a custom for that Chicago despite [illegible] and crimes as a law abiding community

The Illinois congressman used in his defense the Wickersham figures from the last annual report of Prohibition Commissioner J M Doran which showed that the states of Alabama Florida and Georgia the combined population of which is 6 779 407—some 99 000 less than that of Illinois—had 1 in seizures in the year ended June 30 [illegible] times as many distilleries three times as many stills nine times as many still fermenters and over ten times the number of gallons of mash found in Illinois

The inference to be drawn might have been that Federal state county and municipal authorities in those states were more actively engaged in graft jobs bribery and other forms of corruption not having reached the proportions down in the South that they have attained in the Sucker state

But there may be a lot in the congressman contention just the same It begins to look as though the newspapers of the land have worked injustice to Chicago

Figures compiled by Dr Frederick L Hoffman statistician of the Prudential Life Insurance company and published in the Spectator a leading Insurance Journal show that Chicago is less thrilling compared with many southern cities and along lines too in which official detection of duty can not be urged

According to the showing of Dr Hoffman there isn't one of ten big cities of the South which hasn't almost twice as many murders per capita as Chicago and some of them have almost four times as many In the year 1928 there were 60 5 murders to the 100 000 population in Memphis 54 9 in Birmingham 52 6 in Jacksonville 45 1 in Atlanta 37 9 in Little Rock 36 9 in Macon 31 6 in Savannah 27 9 in Nashville 6 2 in Houston and 25 9 in New Orleans compared with 16 8 to the 100 000 in Chicago

As a matter of fact the Chicago murder record is not the worst of the cities up here in the North That dishonor is to be marked up against Detroit where 425 murders against the 498 in Chicago made the murders in the City of the Straits average 16 5 to the 100 000 population Our own Ohio city of Cleveland had 134 murders 13 8 to the 100 000 while the 182 of Philadelphia gave her 8 8 to the 100 000 The 401 murders in New York and the seventy in Los Angeles made their records 6 7 and 4 7 respectively to the 100 000 population

The awful record against the southern cities which lead in the number of murders can not be charged up against their colored population as might be assumed An analysis of the records of any of the ten cities mentioned shows that both whites and blacks have a decidedly higher homicide death rate in the South than in the North Central West or Far West

It is the manifest aim of Dr Hoffman to show that the death penalty is not a deterrent of homicide as he calls attention to the fact that the death penalty is enforced in the ten southern cities cited Unfortunately for his contention Detroit leads all northern cities in her murder average and there is no death penalty in the state of Michigan

Now the question Why has Chicago the reputation for homicides given her? May not the answer be that in Chicago as in possibly no other city crime is exploited by the press In none of the great cities of the land are murders so stereotyped and headlined as in Chicago The Chicago papers not only amplify their stories of gang wars but also seemingly go out of their way to feature them while in many cities and especially in the South murder stories are seldom thus featured and often given merely casual treatment which course apparently doesn't lessen crime but does work seemingly to bring less general reproach to the good name of the cities in which crime is committed

In effect Chicago has exploited her crime while in many cities the tendency is to minimize reference to their crime records

Mud was hurled at Senator Thomas Heflin of Alabama as he was leaving a hall in Brockton Massachusetts last Sunday in which he had addressed a Ku Klux Klan meeting How it tossup which showed the less sense those who helped the Klan movement by throwing the mud or the Klan for holding a Klan meeting on St Patrick's day

The authorities up in Ann [illegible] waging warfare against nudists in Virginia some of the all of which have been compelled in the cities public schools It wouldn't do any particular harm were a like campaign conducted in every city and village in the state Marion included

The departure of [illegible] Snook lost out as warden of the federal penitentiary at Atlanta because of his position against snoopers stating that there are no laws for [illegible] present Volstead federal prohibition Under the circumstances would not have been better had the department of justice frankly stated why the resignation of Snook was asked

You never can tell Just as likely as not somebody will get loose with the idea that the fact that hundreds of stills were washed away in the Georgia floods indicates that the storms causing the flood were the agencies to bring about distribution

Well the impeachment trial of Supreme Judge Carlo S Hards is now on out in Sacramento and soon we will know if a man can't receive a little love token from a former girl friend without being charged with having committed a moral crime

WHAT TERRIBLE EVIL LAY BEHIND ITS MASK?

BY HERMAN LANDON

H[illegible]'s smile grew a little. His grandfather's warmth to him in all its terse[illegible]

Horace Peters, for all appearance was that of villain who is too [illegible] in vain pretenses. [illegible] mind telling me," [illegible]ked, "why you were so [illegible] hold of the letter?" [illegible] mind very much." [illegible] know its contents?"

"Perhaps I could make a [illegible]." Mr. Peters rolled [illegible] eyes at his young [illegible] "Among other things I [illegible] grandfather said some[illegible] me in the letter—some[illegible]mplimentary."

"[illegible] you think that?"

"[illegible] practically told me so [illegible] I gathered it from your ex[illegible] when you first saw me. You [illegible] seen me before, yet you [illegible] me as if—well, as if some[illegible] warned you against me." Mr. Peters laughed quietly. "There [illegible] been a description of me in [illegible] Otherwise, how did you [illegible] Tell me that, Han[illegible]

His eyes narrowed. Mr. [illegible] had come very close to [illegible]

"You make me very curious, [illegible] Peters. As the other great [illegible] might have said, you've got [illegible] guessing. Be a good sport and [illegible] one more question. Why did [illegible] come here tonight. It wasn't [illegible] your tender heart and loving [illegible] was it?"

Mr. Peters hesitated a long time [illegible] answered. At length he got [illegible] paced the floor a few times with [illegible] pom, rooster-like strut, stopped [illegible] admire a water color of some merit [illegible] the wall, and flicked his coat tails with a staccato movement.

"If I answer you truthfully, you will call me a liar," he said in a semi-comic manner.

"Credit me with a little tact," Hannan begged in a faintly mocking tone.

"Well, then—" Mr. Peters turned away from the water color and strutted up to where Hannan stood. He took hold of the solitary button on the young man's dinner jacket and twirled it absently. "You have already guessed my motive, Hannan. It was my kind and tender heart that drew me here tonight. Oh, call me a liar if you like. I don't mind. Your grandfather once called me that. But he was wrong."

The mocking smile on Hannan's face grew fainter and fainter. Hannan stared at the little man who stood twirling the button on his dinner jacket. Why should Mr. Peters have told such a clumsy and transparent lie? A man of his subtlety and mental ability could sure have invented a better one. Why, then? Hannan wavered a little. It did not seem likely that a man of Mr. Peters' intelligence would have made such an absurd statement unless it happened to be the truth.

"Well, why don't you call me a liar?" the little man went on, still fiddling absently with Hannan's button. "As a matter of fact, I don't care a snap whether you believe me or not. I am only telling you, in order to keep the record straight, that your grandfather did me an injustice. Toward the very last our long and intimate friendship was ruptured by a misunderstanding. I was too proud—or stubborn, if you prefer—to argue with him and try to convince him to was wrong. For that matter," he added with a touch of asperity, "I'm not going to argue with you."

"Let go my button," said Hannan, a little dazed from his attempt to reconcile his conflicting impressions.

"You make me nervous with that fiddling. What was the misunderstanding about?"

"I won't be cross-examined." Horace Peters drew himself up with dignity. "I can see you think I'm a liar, even though you're not candid enough to tell me so to my face."

Hannan's brain was churning with incongruities. Still another contradiction came to him. "Was it your kind and tender heart that made you pick those two hornets on me?"

"It was," said Mr. Peters coldly. "I acted for your own good. I don't expect you to believe it, and I shan't attempt to convince you. I can read your mind, young man. You are determined to interpret my actions in the worst possible light. It's beneath my dignity to argue with such as you. Good night—and be damned, sir!"

He snatched up his silk hat and strutted off in a great and haughty haste. Hannan was bewildered and speechless. He watched Mr. Peters' flying coat-tails, almost tempted to call him back, but feeling it would be useless. A personality like Mr. Peters' full of contradictions, eccentricities and odd peculiarities, made him feel at a loss.

And just then, with his hand on the door-knob, the little man turned. He came back, holding his head high, and stuck his hand in his pocket.

"I almost forgot." His voice was loftily frigid. He drew an envelope from his pocket. "Your father handed me this the last time I saw him. He asked me to deliver it to you."

Hannan took the envelope, glanced at his father's prim and cramped handwriting, and started to open it.

"I have a confession to make," said Mr. Peters in the same cold and haughty tones. "I opened and read your father's letter."

Hannan gave him a dazed look.

"I do not choose to explain," declared the little man. "Neither shall I apologize. I opened and read your father's letter for reasons that seemed sufficient to me."

With that he strutted off again. Hannan looked down at the flap of the envelope. The opening and resealing must have been done very cleverly, for no sign of tampering was evident. It occurred to him that Mr. Peters could have withheld his confession and Hannan would have been none the wiser.

He drew out and read the inclosure. The letter was trivial in its nature, consisting merely of a number of suggestions concerning the disposition of certain articles belonging to the family—just such a letter as might have been written by a man of quiet and humdrum tendencies. If Mr. Peters had expected to discover something of a sensational nature, he must certainly have been disappointed.

Hannan felt a little disappointed, too. And again he asked himself why Mr. Peters had confessed that he had opened the letter. Perhaps it was a sort of pride—the pride of a man who, though he may stoop to shabby things, yet disdains concealment. In the midst of his perplexity his eyes fell on the line at the top of the letter. It was only a date, and as often happens he had not noticed it at first.

His gaze fixed on the line with an intensity out of all proportion to its apparent importance. At first, indeed, he could not understand why the line absorbed his attention in such a curious way.

"October 1, 1923," he mumbled.

He jerked up his head, then stood stonily still. Thoughts trudged sluggishly through his dazed brain. October 1, 1923——The letter had been written a little more than two years ago. And his father—Hannan suddenly felt a little shock—his father was supposed to have died four years ago. A mistake of some kind? Perhaps his father had meant to write 1921. But that was not very likely; people rarely made mistakes of that sort. Careless ones sometimes dated their letters a year back, especially in the first weeks of a new year, but they were not so likely to err on the side of the future. No, the date was probably correct, yet——

He looked up from the letter. Mr. Peters, with his jutting coat-tails and bewildering ways, was gone. But he could not have been gone long—only a minute or two. In all probability he had not reached the street. Likely as not he would wait a few moments for a taxi.

Hannan reached for his hat. A very still, small voice said Beware! But Hannan was not listening.

Love's Awakening

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affections

BY ADELE GARRISON

Harry Underwood Quirts Alarmed Princess Olina.

"THERE'S no doubt about it," Harry Underwood began slowly, his eyes on Princess Olina. "Somebody's got it in for Prince George, somebody who only just now has found out who he is."

Princess Olina's eyes widened and she sat forward in her chair.

"I can guess," she said tensely. "There must be something happening in Trees that we don't know about. Georges' cousin, the next in line to the throne, always has hated him, but there's never been any reason for him to get Georges out of the way because there are two lives between Georges and the crown. What is it? Is the king of Trees . . .?"

Her voice faltered, and Mr. Underwood answered her decisively.

"No, no, he is not dead."

"Then what . . .?"

Mr. Underwood spread his hands expressively.

"Who can tell?" he said, and suddenly I knew that he did not mean to tell Olina of the precarious physical condition of the old king of Trees and the invalid brother who was his heir. For some reason of his own he did not wish her to know that George was so near to the throne, and I did not dare to go far to fathom that reason. The time was not ripe, he judged, for Olina to have that knowledge. He wanted the "international romance" as he called the tangled foreign affair of Georges, Marie Noel and Olina, to go on until there should be no romantic illusions left in the hearts of the young royal votaries who had brought such bizarre happenings into our lives. A premature announcement of Georges' weakness to the crown would spoil everything, he feared.

"Most probably an anarchistic plot," he said, after a pause. "Or it might be that he was mistaken for someone else."

"That is hardly possible, is it?" Olina asked, "when you consider the visitor I saw tonight."

"True, true," Mr. Underwood assented hastily. "He must have been shot by some one who had planned to kill him."

Prince Olina shuddered.

"Where did it happen?" she asked.

Mr. Underwood hesitated an instant.

"Georges didn't say just where," he answered, "but the men who brought him in said that they found him in his car on one of roads leading from the Montauk highway down to the bay. He evidently had been at supper at some inn down there, and was coming back to his hotel. Georges told me that two men stepped into the road that he slowed up and swerved to avoid hitting them and that then he felt something hit his head and didn't know anything more until he woke up in the hospital. Two men coming past in a car found him and took him to the hospital."

Princess Olina nodded slowly and sat silent for a minute. Then she put a question which I guessed was disconcerting to Harry Underwood.

"How did you find out about it?" she asked, but his manner as reply was prompt.

"The hospital authorities found my address in his pocket and telephoned me."

My fellow quickened at the words. He evidently did not intend to let Olina know that Mary and I were in Georges at the time of the shooting. But Olina's next question enlightened Mr. Underwood for a second.

"Does Mary know?" she asked.

Harry Underwood looked sore at me.

"How about it?" he said and for a flash I saw eyes I caught a flash of treacherous glee at them be her own parlance "passing the buck" to me.

"Yes, Mary knows," I said shortly. She was with me when I heard of it."

I had told her nothing save the truth. I said to myself, but I shot a resentful look at Harry Underwood which Olina could not see. He waited his chance to send me a provoking wink in reply, and I knew that he was hugely glad over his trick.

There was little more conversation until the roar of a motorcycle outside heralded the arrival of the State trooper.

"Get up to bed, now," Mr. Underwood commanded, "and don't come down for anything, not even a telephone. I'll countermand that message of yours to Neel. We won't need him tonight."

"But where is Noel?" she asked wonderingly, and when we were outside again in the car headed for home, I worriedly echoed her question.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TODAY was Wednesday and the sun was shining but the wind was in the north, and it felt like the wind had gone away up north and headed off the winter and was driving it back to us, and my shirttail flapped and fluttered and I could feel my hair blowing, and Jubilee was looking up at me like he was wishing I would have a heart and pull him back up and let him get warm before I let him down the rest of the way, but a boy hasn't got any sense, so I kept on letting him down.

When I had got me work all done and had fed my fave the Lost Rag of Tripe hadn't showed up, and I was so sore I said to let's go around past his house and see if we could catch him, but the rest didn't want to catch him, they hadn't lost a half a dollar, and the girls do not like to see fights and they said I ought to ignore him, and I said that was what I was going to do if I got my hand on him, and Maggie said she bet I didn't know what ignore meant, and I said maybe I didn't but I knew what I meant, so then they all went around that way, and he was in his side yard, and he saw us coming, and I grinned like I was friendly till I got to the gate and I knew I could head him off before he could get to his front door, and I thought I could nail him before he got to his back door, and we both fit out and he was bent way over running, and I had my hand almost on him when I was going between the tree and the house, and the dirty crook had stretched a wire between the tree and the house and had been laying for me, and I was going as fast that when the wire hit me in the neck both my feet went up.

I think I looped the loop once but the Bunch says I didn't, but I came down on the back of my neck, and when I got up and looked around the Lost Rag of Tripe was out of the gate and was poking them downen his way to school and I jumped the fence and tore out after him, and when we got there he went up the front steps like a bird, and grabbed the doorknob and went to open the door but it had not been unlocked yet, and then I had him, and he throwed both arms around me and told me right to him so I could not punch him, and then we rolled all the way down the stone steps and there is a boat a dozen of them, and I was setting on him, and had just got my half with the rubber on it out of his pocket when someone grabbed my collar and lifted me off, and we was both taken in school, and the teacher said to give her the ball, I hung onto the rubber with my left and handed it to her with my right, and before she knew it it was safe in my left. She looked all around her desk for it but didn't find it. We had to stay in at recess, but I have got my half back. No one can monkey with me and get away with it.

BY BOB ELLIOTT

MARKERT & LEWIS and Green Camp independent cage quintets were barred from competition in the Marion county amateur basketball tournament which will get started tonight at the Marion Y M C A with Class B teams competing.

Both of these teams right to play had been questioned at the first meeting of the managers held Monday night. Last night the managers met again and when representatives of these two teams failed to show proof that they had played three games this season they were barred from play. Officials of the Y, when drafting rules for this years tourney expressly stated that they were not concerned with pick up teams and therefore a rule was made requiring each team entering to have played at least three games under the banner of the team they entered the tournament.

Neither the Markert & Lewis or Green Camp fives could show enough proof of this so a standing vote of the managers of the other teams was taken and they were unanimously barred from the tourney. The with drawal of these two teams left 12 quints for Class A. Managers of these teams decided to disregard the first drawings that were made Monday night and a new drawing was held last night. It was decided that the teams drawing numbers 9 10 11 and 12 should receive byes into the second round with the first eight teams playing each other.

Due to the number of teams entered in Class A it was decided to start competition in this class tonight instead of Thursday as previously scheduled. Two of the first round games will be played tonight with the other two being played Thursday night. Friday night the entire second round of this class will be played off with the semi finals coming Tuesday night of next week and the finals in all three classes two days later.

Class B will swing into action Friday night with all teams participating in the first round. The semi finals will come off Tuesday night with the finals Thursday. All of the first round games in this class will be played on the upper gym floor with seven or eight minute quarters. The semi finals will be played on the lower floor Tuesday night before the semi finals of class A. All final games in the three classes will be played off on the lower floor.

In class C which will not start play until Monday night of next week all games will be played on the upper floor except the final contest. At the close of the first round games in this class the managers of three surviving teams will meet and draw to see which team gets the bye into the finals. Due to an overnight byes were not awarded in the first round so this action had to be taken by officials.

Selection of officials for all three classes has been completed but their names have not been revealed. Probably Biddy Compton and Davey Bohve will handle class A with Marion Lewis in charge of the affairs.

Getting 1009 in the third frame the winners held a total of 2815 pins at the finish. The Chrispin team is one game behind the Lumbermen.

The six century mark was broken quite frequently last night with W Baldauf approaching 700 with his 698. Boyd was good for 621 while Stemmetz crushed the pins for 611.

M'LARNIN IS NEAR MILLIONAIRE CLASS

Fight with Ray Miller Friday Night Will Be Sellout

NEW YORK March 20—Thirty blocks further downtown the muggs fought at the ticket booths for the privilege of making Jimmy McLarnin a richer man than ever he will need to be. He is well on his way toward the million he couldn't spend with the help of the Marine corps but you wouldn't think he had a nickel for car fare if you saw Jimmy McLarnin today as he sat unconscious of the incidents of surroundings that included threadbare carpet and hotchpotch furniture and mumbled very curiously that he wouldn't change places with a prince of the blood.

Maybe nobody else would either if they were due to get $80,000 three ways with Ray Miller and the Garden Corporation on Friday night. But McLarnin intimates that money doesn't rate six, two and even with contentment and somehow he makes you believe him. Just plain folks this fellow.

He is in fact all that is left of the old timer who fought because fighting was his life and so he sat in his dingy suite at the family hotel he finds suitable to his needs and talked of fighting with the enthusiasm of one who discusses his life work.

A medieval knight must have looked shining mark when his armor was brightened up with silver store polish.

Ohio College Interest Turns To Baseball

Nothing Less Than National Pennant Will Do for Chicago Cubs Officials

LOS ANGELES Cal March 20—Nothing short of the National league championship will satisfy Cubs officials this season. When two or more shareholders are gathered together they lift the voice in praise of the prospects of Manager Joe McCarthy's troupe. The idea seems to prevail that all the Cubs have to do is step out and shake the pennant bunch and nature will do the rest.

Much of this is based upon the acquisition of Rogers Hornsby. If Cubs officials this season. When he has put into the Cub lineup things smooth. Then he has a terrible display of the mental attitude said to have made him undesirable in St Louis and New York.

Aside from Hornsby Cub prospects hinge upon the pitchers. If Mac Cranores the first baseball [illegible] under in his call treatment he annexed the Cubs coaches to the annual claim are making it. The SPORT-O-GRAPH

BY FRANK G MENKE

EVERY once in a while every champion in the history ranks has known tossed onto the record books at least one fistic outing which left some scandal or the razz in its wake.

SOME said Sully wasn't fit to go into the ring that day only lack of condition halted John L. from bumping Cholly into the English Channel.

There were others who declared that Sully was threatened by English tuffs and went along easily with Mitchell.

Pro Mitchellites asserted that the referee was friendly to Sullivan and stopped the fight or rather agreed to its ending when he saw John L. peltering out while the other faction avowed that the run, arbiter was supposed to have been Mitchell's friend and saved Charlie and the money that the Englishmans friends wagered.

ANYWAY the universal conclusion of 40 years ago was that the Sullivan Mitchell fight was one of those things.

While Jim Corbett was champion he mixed it with Tom Sharkey in a four rounder and the mob insisted that Corbett got all the best of it when the referee called it a draw. In 1900 Jim Jeffries knocked out Bob Fitzsimmons in two rounds in New York and it was immediately charged that McCoy framed it to help gamblers make a clean up. Corbett denied at the prize fight and declared that if McCoy took a dive it was of the knockout's own choice.

WHEN Bob Fitzsimmons was dethroned in 1899 by Jim Jeffries it was openly charged and some of spectators who still are alive continue to insist Fitz wasn't doing any real living that night.

Jim Jeffries was practically hooted out of New York in 1898 when he made his first appearance there against Bob Armstrong and the memory of his game but doleful performance against Jack Johnson in 1910 still is vivid.

THEN there was Jack Johnson who needs no further explanation.

Jess Willard fought the world's WORST fight against Carl Morris at New York in 1915—there never was one more awful for its lack of action—its' elephantine movements etc. That was before Jess became champion. When he won from Johnson it was charged that the negro went in to the ruin for a consideration.

Willard as champion put on a sorry exhibition in 1916 against Frank Moran.

THE record books show a have defeat against Jack Dempsey in 1917 by the dinkum the but tough Jim Flynn. Some folks say that Jack just walked into a fast one that night fell down by accident and became so malignant with himself and so disgusted that he forgot to get up within the allotted 10 seconds.

Some other of the dear people maintain that Flynn actually did lay Dempsey. Which may be the truth etc. However, in view of the fact that Flynn never was much of a walloper and Dempsey's reputation for taking slugs on the whiskers is world wide you can reach your own conclusion of the brain pool for him.

Maybe some of the champs have been unjustly avenged for some of their busts but no one can duck the fact that from John L's time to 1888 unto Tunney's of today each champ at one time or another in his career either fought like a potlook or won or lost under odoriferous circumstances.

AND then there's Gene Tunney. The dear boy fought in such spiritless fashion against Jack Bernstein in Philadelphia that both were tossed out of the ring. He was given the bird when he asked for cheers in behalf of his bosses over Italian Jack Herman and Bartley Madden because fans had the idea both boys went into the swimming.

PREDICTS U. S. TO DOMINATE WORLD AIRWAY

McCracken, Retiring Air Chief, Sees Chicago Center of World

SAYS INDUSTRY SOUND

Believes Flying Gets Greatest Impetus from Regular Passenger-Carrying

WASHINGTON, March 20—America is on the way to aerial domination of the world, with her commercial aviation already grown from an infant into a billion dollar giant within the last five years.

This is the opinion of William P. McCracken, Jr., retiring assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics.

He predicted Chicago would become the air center of the world, forging ahead of Berlin, where more planes now arrive and depart daily on schedule than any other place.

The commerce air chief, who yesterday announced his resignation effective two months hence, outlined his views on aviation as it stands and as it promises for the future in an interview.

New Lines and Lights

McCracken took over the air bureau of the commerce department when it was inaugurated in August, 1926. It has been under his guidance since and more than 8,000 miles of lighted airways have come into existence. He drew up the modern regulations for the new-born commerce of the skies.

Today, on the threshold of his entrance into commercial flying proper, he envisioned a widening world of aviation overhead, flying above winking trade lanes of lights through the dark hours.

"This year we have two main jobs cut out for us—that of establishment of new passenger lines, and extension of lighted airways," he said.

In Sound Condition

"But it is through regular, scheduled passenger carrying that flying will receive its greatest forward impetus and enable us to outstrip our European neighbors in the air.

"The industry as a whole is in a sound condition. Five years ago a few millions would have bought the industry, lock, stock and barrel. Now it's worth a cool billion, and growing fast."

He gave as the most convincing proof of the worth and soundness of flying the fact that railway executives all over the country are considering combining it with rail service for fast, economical transportation.

"My statement two years ago that five railway officials were considering a combination of air and rail caused widespread comment," he recalled. "Now there are not five railway executives in the country who aren't giving thought to this idea."

Ocean Flights Not Near

McCracken does not believe, however, that transoceanic flights on a schedule basis will come in the near future.

"Much work as regards weather service and an increased safety element must be accomplished before this can come to pass," he said.

The fact McCracken is remaining an additional two months in office, at the request of President Hoover, lent credence here to the belief the executive would select Clarence M. Young, commerce air bureau director, to step into his chief's shoes. Young is now studying airways, ports and equipment in Europe under department orders.

REVIVALIST SPEAKS

Life of Jacob Basis of Sermon at Epworth M. E. Church

"When a man is wrong in his own heart, those around him appear wrong also," Dr. John Paul, of Upland, Ind., said in his revival sermon at Epworth M. E. church last night. He brought out the point of his sermon with two illustrative stories.

"Thus Jacob, wrestling with the angel, discovered that the trouble was not with Esau but in his own nature. Named Jacob, by inspiration because he was crooked, he was renamed Israel, which means a prince, when he sought God for a change in his nature.

"Afterward, his life was filled with honor, in life's evening he was given a vision of Christ's coming Kingdom, with the prophecy that the scepter would abide with Judah till Shiloh should come."

COLLEGE STUDENT IS WOUNDED BY YOUTH

Alliance Young Man Charges Automobile Companion Shot Him

CANTON, March 20—Alfred Davis, 20, of Alliance, a student at Mt. Union college, was in Mercy hospital here today with three bullet wounds inflicted, police say, by Lloyd Hoover, 21, of Akron. Hoover is in the county jail on an open charge pending the outcome of Davis' injuries.

Davis told police he was approached by Hoover early today with the request that he drive him to Harrisburg, near here. Davis complied, he related, and when the car reached a lonely spot the Akron youth drew a gun and demanded Davis' money, according to the latter's story. Davis grappled with his assailant, he related, and in the struggle received bullet wounds in the neck, chest and arm.

Hoover took the wheel, Davis said, and drove to Louisville where he disappeared but was arrested at the Canton bus terminal a few hours later. Police say Hoover is on probation on an automobile stealing charge. Davis is the son of D. D. Davis, prominent Stark county labor leader and Alliance city councilman.

FEDERAL TAX CUT TWO YEARS AWAY

Increase in Govermental Appropriations Dims Hope for Immediate Reduction

WASHINGTON, March 20—The American people must wait two years at least for any further reduction in federal taxes.

This was the opinion expressed today by Vice President Charles Curtis, Senator Reed Smoot, Republican of Utah, and other administration leaders. A sharp increase in governmental appropriations, uncertainty over the business outlook for 1930, and a possibility that tax collections this year may not reach the amazing totals of 1925, they said, prohibit any effort at tax reduction either in the coming special session or at the following regular session of the new congress.

If the government's books show a large surplus at the end of the next fiscal year—on July 1, 1930—then tax reduction legislation probably will be considered at the second session of congress, which will start in December, 1930. That was the only hope held out for the American taxpayer.

The biggest fly in the tax reduction ointment apparently will be the total of congressional appropriations for the next fiscal year—the highest in the peace time history of the government. In all, congress authorized $4,063,561,000 in appropriations for the period July 1, 1929, to July 1, 1930.

MARSHAL FOCH IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

across the Atlantic. Marshal Foch was in close contact with the American soldier and an intimacy sprang up between him and a number of American officers of high rank, notably Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of the American Expeditionary force.

After the peace treaty was concluded Marshal Foch made a trip to the United States to see the country he had come to admire so much.

The doctors attending the marshal said today they were surprised by the strength of his constitution, on several occasions during the past few weeks of his illness he suffered sinking spells when death seemed near. But he rallied and showed a momentary return of the vigor of yore. But his vitality was declining daily beneath the ravages of disease.

The soldier had always lived simply, his meals were of the lightest. he never drank liquor. He probably received more invitations to banquets and dinners than any other man in France up to the time he had to take to his bed, but he never tasted the rich foods and wines set before him. He would toy with a piece of roll or perhaps have a little thin soup, but passed up all the highly seasoned meats. His favorite dish was a plain omelet with bread and butter and a glass of water.

History being but a succession of biographies, the years from 1911 to late 1918 will be written largely from the life of Ferdinand Foch, Marshal of France, a coiner of maxims and the foremost strategist of the Great War.

Marshal Foch rose from comparative obscurity after the first battle of the Marne when his military genius was largely responsible for the Allied victory which stopped the German drive into France and saved Paris.

Mighty events, without parallel in the history of the world, caught him up and lifted him to a pinnacle of power and glory which even death could not topple. He was one of the few army commanders, Allied or German, whose stature did not diminish under the calm and studied scrutiny of peace.

Fame Grows

Though there have been many to point a finger and say, "He made a mistake here," his time will undoubtedly grow with the years, and in time, he may join the small company of immortals whose noteworthy members are Alexander, Caesar and Napoleon.

He was called to power and selected as the Generalissimo of 10,000,000 armed men, speaking a score of different languages, when in comparative disfavor and retired from active service.

France, even in war time, like other countries, had its politicians. They decided in April, 1917, that Foch was no longer fit for an independent field command. So, he was "kicked upstairs" and made French military member of the supreme war council.

This organization with representation from the various nations fighting on the Allied side, was a source of constant bickering and dispute. But Foch, like the true soldier he was, obeyed orders without question.

This was the man who had stood at the Marne, holding the French center, when Marshal ("Pap") Joffre put his back to the wall and told his reeling army that it could retreat no further.

Decisive Battleground

The Marne was the decisive battleground. The fate of France was hanging in the balance and the French had to fight or die.

It was Foch who saw the gap between the first and second German armies when General von Kluck in his eagerness to reach Paris, swung too wide in his encircling movement. Foch saw his opportunity, and plugged it, and the rest is history.

Foch was the author of the memorable message which caught the imagination of the entire world and which ranks with the historic utterances of Caesar, Nelson and Grant:

"My right is crushed. My left is in retreat. I am attacking with my center."

This message gave the keynote of his whole character—his indomitable will.

Ferdinand Foch was born at Tarbes, a little city in the Pyrenees, close to the Spanish frontier, on October 2, 1851. He received his military education at Metz and served as a subaltern in through the disastrous Franco-Prussian war. He was appointed a lieutenant in 1875. Three years later he was made a captain. It was not until 21 years later that he rose to be a lieutenant colonel. He was appointed colonel in 1903. In 1911 he was a general commanding the Thirteenth Division.

At War College

In the meantime Foch was an instructor in the Ecole de Guerrere—the French War college, where he lectured on tactics. Promotion was slow in those lazy days of peace. The only fighting was with tribesmen in far away colonies.

But there were busy days to come. Foch was a major general commanding the Twentieth Army Corps when the first German Uhlan rode across the frontier in August, 1911.

It was not until 1918—the same year he was designated Generalissimo of all the Allied Armies—that he was made a Marshal of France.

Earlier in the conflict Foch commanded a French army in the "race for the English Channel" when the Germans were trying to seize the Channel ports to cut short any direct communication between England and the English armies fighting on French soil.

Foch was moved from point to point along the great Western Battle front for the fighting areas was extensive and trained army officers were few, compared with the vast number of men under arms. He helped direct the Aisne offensive and the Artois drive after the Germans had "dug in" and the conflict settled down to a battle of attrition.

FLORIDA GETS BRUNT OF FLOOD WATERS

Rampant Streams of Alabama and Georgia Rush into Other Parts of State

ATLANTA, March 20—Tons of flood waters were unleashed upon northwestern Florida today from the rampant streams of Alabama and Georgia, which have left in their wake 11 dead, thousands homeless and millions in property damage.

Several Florida towns are inundated, and some 2,000 persons were reported homeless. A half dozen other town were imperiled by the flood. Only one death has been reported from the Florida section.

Hundreds of persons in northwestern Florida were warned to leave their homes in the lowlands by a courier who rode from Bainbridge, Ga., in a twentieth century paney in a race with the crest of the Apalachicola, Chattahoochee and Flint rivers. He was Edward H. Calvin, of Bainbridge.

Caneyville and Milligan, Florida, appeared to be the worst hit towns. Only a few homes were left by the overflow at the latter place, reports said. However, all the residents were believed to have escaped. A large part of River Junction, at the confluence of the Flint and the Chattahoochee, was under water.

FORMER TOLEDOAN IS NAMED MYSTERY MAN

Officer Points Him Out Before Conviction on Kidnaping Charge

OAKLAND, Cal., March 20—A chance visit of an Oakland policeman to a courtroom where David A. Barnett, wealthy manufacturer and former Toledo, Ohio, man, was convicted of kidnaping, resulted today in police reopening investigation of one of California's mysterious murders.

Nearly two years ago the battered body of 15-year-old Mabel "Frankie" Mayer was found in a vacant lot near her home. Despite a most extensive investigation, the murder was never solved. Throughout the manhunt that followed a "mystery man" who had been seen much in the company of the girl was sought by police. Late yesterday, Powell Pierce, policeman, positively identified Barnett as he sat at counsel table the defendant in the alleged kidnaping of fifteen-year-old Elaine Windfelt, as the "mystery man" that the officer had often noticed in the Mayer girl's company before she was slain.

Chief of Police Donald L. Marshall immediately ordered a special investigation and District Attorney Earl Warren announced that regardless of the outcome of the kidnaping case a sweeping investigation would be made of the officer's startling claim.

The case on the kidnaping charge went to a jury of eight women and four men late yesterday who returned a verdict of guilty after a short period of deliberation.

The conviction carries a maximum sentence of 20 years' imprisonment.

WOMAN CONTINUES SERVICE FOR POOR

Mrs. Charles Burke "Carries On" Although Forced To Close Mission

other equipment is now [illegible] until she feels ready to [illegible] and a way to [illegible]

During the period of [illegible] the mission enrolled 103 members. Only Mrs. Burke knows just how deeply she wants the mission to be open and continue to reach and save souls.

Charles Blair was superintendent of the Sunday school, Mrs. Burke secretary of the school and superintendent of the mission and Mrs. Blair was treasurer.

Open to All

Many of the ministers in the city urged Mrs. Burke when she opened her mission to make it denominational, but Mrs. Burke remained true to her belief that everyone is free to gain one end in religion and that her mission should be interdenominational.

Mrs. Burke still conducts prayer meetings every Wednesday night at her home, just as she did before her mission opened in November.

The W. C. Boyd Funeral home furnished the chairs for the small house of prayer until the members were able to furnish them and it was the Parties' lodge in the city that Mrs. Burke thanks for the first ton of coal used to warm the mission for services.

At Christmas time Mrs. Burke with the assistance of the women of the mission, made and filled 60 stockings of candy and gave away a bushel of apples at the Christmas service. Thirty-five pounds of the sugar for the candy and the apples were given by Mrs. J. B. Wise. Mrs. Frances Benson, Oak Grove av., gave nine pounds of peanut brittle candy for the stockings.

From now on, Mrs. Burke is going to keep account of the churches to which the donors of food, clothing and money belong and in September, an itemized list of these donations will be presented the ministers of the churches.

Aided by Churches

Especially gracious in their contributions to the poor whom Mrs. Burke takes care of were members of the Methodist, Presbyterian, Evangelical and Catholic churches. Mrs. Burke said, although many of her large contributions came from churches of other denominationals.

The total amount in dollars and cents of the value of the clothing, household goods and furniture, bedding, coal, groceries and medicines which Mrs. Burke has given out in the past year is $711.71.

The following is an itemized list of the amounts of furnishings, etc., which she has handed out to the poor in every nook and corner of the city:

Ladies' and men's coats, 72; underwear, 25 suits; men's and boys' suits, 18; men's trousers, 27; hose, 39 pairs; shoes, 37 pairs; caps, 25; comforters, 14; blankets, 10 pairs; sheets, 10 pairs; pillow cases, 8 pairs; pillows, 6; chairs, 15; stands, 9; tables, 4; beds, mattresses and springs (together, 5; stoves, 5; table cloths, 7; dresser scarfs, 9; towels, 20; baby layets, 7; rocking chairs, 15; tons of coal, 15½; baskets of groceries, 10, cans of fruit, 65. She made 205 private calls to needy homes.

At Christmas time the girls from the Ohio Associated Telephone Co. here, treated 60 boys and girls whom Mrs. Burke had found needy. Each was given two suits of underwear and a pair of stockings. The girls were given dolls and the boys tractor toys. Supper was served the entire party and a treat of candy, fruit and nuts given each of the small guests.

Homes Given Children

Two boys and six girls found homes through Mrs. Burke's efforts last year.

Mrs. Burke is the mother of one child, a daughter who is married and lives in Cleveland, and the grandmother of three children.

She wished to state in this account that it was not because of ill health that she was forced to close the mission, as many have suggested, but because of inadequate funds.

It is one of her desires too, that some day she may be able to afford an automobile, no matter what kind, in order that she may visit more people who need her. At present, because of the expense of riding the busses, she makes her hundreds of calls afoot.

The supply of clothing and furnishings stored in the attic of her Davids street home are diminishing and Mrs. Burke has asked that anyone in the city who has any clothes which they can not use, or which have been outgrown, notify her or telephone her at 8950.

INSTEAD of exercise

Don't suffer the consequences of persistent lack of exercise. Learn the simple secret of the exerciser in the vestpocket box for a dime! Millions know it!

Cascarets make bilious, headachy, constipated people feel wonderful. Their effect is not only quick, but it's lasting. They give the bowels as much real exercise as they get from an hour in the saddle.

Oils, salts and ordinary laxatives do not act like Cascarets. These things produce only mechanical or chemical action. They actually weaken the bowels. You have to keep doctoring with them.

Each time you use Cascarets, your bowels become stronger. They are made from Cascara Bacrada, which stimulates the natural peristaltic action of the bowel muscles. Nothing else does this. That accounts for the popularity of Cascarets and their tremendous sales of over 20 million packages a year!

Local School Teacher Recruits Boys for Mountain Camp in West Virginia

Many of the boys ... ste... members of the Boy Scouts ... ne... are enrolled to a ... at Camp Jean A. Owens, south of the city.

But Ira H. Shade, instructor of chemistry and physics at Harding High school, has found the ideal camp, a spot in the mountains of West Virginia, where boys for a nominal sum may spend a period of time learning the lore of campcraft and of nature.

Honors Won by Perry

Last year, Claude Perry won some of the highest honors to be won at Camp Terra Alta, and showed promise of being one of the camp leaders if he returned decide to return this year.

Imagine, living for eight weeks in a camp 2,500 feet above sea level, nestled in mountain scenery, and confident that the average heat in summer is 70 degrees. What a thrill for the town boy who has sweated about from side to side in the heat of some of Marion's torrid nights, to go to this camp where it is necessary to sleep under blankets every night.

Already this year Ben Jacoby, Eugene Pitts, who has been to the camp before, and Dwight Bargar have discussed with Mr. Shade the question of enrolling in the camp.

Among the honors earned by Perry last year at camp were the all round camper and the all round track man awards.

Camp will open June 28 and close Aug. 20 and crammed into these eight glorious weeks are summer sports of every kind imaginable, including "goofy golf." This game was added in 1925 and consists of a nine-hole course. The game is played exactly as golf, except that an out-seam outdoor ball is used instead of the golf ball. Clubs are cut from the woods, the boys acting a curve to them by cutting up the root with the shrub.

Indoor Attractions

Three bowling alleys and several billiard tables are in the large recreation hall and prove doubly popular with the boys on rainy days and nights. Boating, swimming, shooting, tennis, an archery department, pony riding, wireless, airplane construction, everything that a live boy between the ages of nine and twenty years would enjoy to the fullest, is at Camp Terra Alta.

The camp book includes the following arguments for "Outdoors." a good dose of outdoors would cure almost anything; quit wearing a hat and let your hair outdoors, for that bald spot; go barefoot, and your feet will slip back 10 years; take off your clothes and lie on the sand in the sun, acquire a rich tan, and you will become healthy as a savage; go outdoors and get rid of nerves, they live in the house; outdoors is cheap and plenty; God made outdoors; man made indoors; and God lives outdoors; in man-made edifices are—idols.

The camp is governed by a strict code of rules and regulations, and among them is one that no boy in camp is permitted to smoke cigarets. The reveille is sounded at 7 o'clock, every morning for the start of a new and more interesting day than the one before and at 9:45 o'clock at night, taps are sounded and every boy hies himself to the tent which he shares with his pal.

Older people think that they are getting spring fever when the first touch of spring makes them want to chuck their jobs and go, but it isn't, it's only this little boy fever attacking them, urging them to quit the stuffy city and take to the roads and nature.

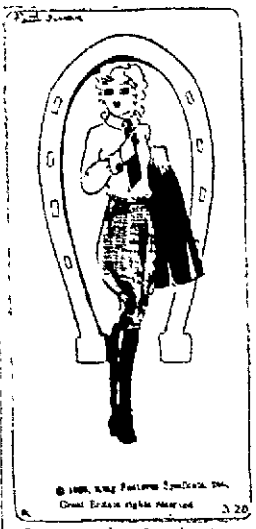
Ritzy Rosalie



It took a lot of urging to extract a promise from Rosalie to go riding before breakfast—and a very early breakfast at that. She is still half asleep and not quite ready. For the first time she will wear her new cuff-links of English crystal bearing miniatures of her favorite mount. She hopes she'll be able to find a gentle horse like Star, back home. Rosalie intends to have miniatures made of Jin and Jingles to wear as sport brooches, as it's the sporting thing to "wear" one's pets.

With Super-Six owners by tens of thousands, repeating on Essex, the most spontaneous welcome ever extended a 6-cylinder car has brought hosts of car owners from every price and size field to Essex the Challenger

Its acceptance is the talk everywhere. Again and again the largest production ever planned by Essex has had to be increased to meet this remarkable demand.

The results of Challenger Week by nation-wide proofs—in performance, reliability and economy—have extended the advantages of this big, fine car with the force of universal appeal.

With its open challenge, that excepts no car—

—with its 24% greater power and 70-mile-an-hour performance

—with its greater beauty, adult-size capacity, riding ease and economy

—and with its brilliant chassis quality and fine, large bodies—Essex establishes also an outstanding leadership in obvious VALUE. It offers an ensemble of fine car equipment identified only with costly cars, and available, when at all, only as "extras," at extra cost on cars of Essex price. In Essex the Challenger—a complete, fine big "Six"—these items of course are standard.

They represent several hundred visible dollars' worth of additional value, and are another reason for the enormous success which Essex the Challenger has enjoyed from the outset.

BENDER AND CLARK IN FLOOR BATTLE

Urbana Solon Denies Ku Klux Klan Wrote His Measure

15 VOTE YES, 10 NO

Sixteen Ballots Necessary To Pass Measure in Ohio Senate

COLUMBUS March 30—Defeat of the Ku Klux Klan supported anti alien labor bill in the Ohio senate yesterday today boded ill for the Bible bill which is now pending before the state legislature

It is openly admitted that the defeat of the labor bill was the sharpest blow dealt to the klan organization this session

Are we to put the stamp of the Ku Klux Klan on the Ohio senate Senator George H Bender bitterly asked in arguing against the measure

Replying to Bender Senator Will H Clark Urbana sponsor of the bill declared that I wrote the bill word for word as contained in the bill as it was introduced on January 10 and I have not changed a comma since that time Sixteen votes a three fifths majority is necessary to pass the bill

Still in Committee

Sentiment expressed in the defeat of the labor bill will undoubtedly affect the Bible measure which is admittedly supported by the Ku Klux Klan and which requires the reading of 10 passages of the Bible daily in the public schools of Ohio is put on the floor of the upper house for consideration

The Bible bill still is in committee and may never see the light of day It is to come up for discussion Thursday night

Senator Bender in attacking the anti alien labor bill read a letter from the Imperial Palace Invisible Empire Knights of the Ku Klux Klan requesting the passing of both the labor and Bible measure and then lament the fact that such things as invisible empires and imperial palaces existed in the United States

Unnecessary Legislation

Senator Clark again replied to Bender saying that he had been inspired to write it when he saw the children of American workingmen without shoes on a cold day while foreigners got the jobs American laborers should have had If you vote against this bill you are voting for the foreigners and against the American laboring men the Urbana solon declared

Unless says Legislation the measure was brandished Senator Allan G Waller Jefferson floor leader when he attacked the bill

Next Senator J L Marshall Cleveland assumed the floor to express his opposition to the proposed law

No contractor is going to ask his ditch diggers if they have taken out naturalization papers and furthermore no one is going down in the ditches to find out the Cleveland senator said

Believes Tension

Senator Bender again rose and shouted his views on the bill I am speaking to you as a Presbyterian elder he said I used to think there was danger of the pope taking over America If the pope wanted to get a foothold in Washington he would have done it when Hull and Daugherty were running things and Washington was for sale

Relieving the tension of the situation Senator G M Rumler Lewisburg asked What'll I do with my Irish cousins from Germany if they can't go to work when they come here

Under this bill your Irish cousins couldn't get a job on the police force Senator Clark answered

A similar bill was passed by the senate several years ago but was never acted upon in the house

Meditations OF A Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Why Weep at a Wedding?

WEDDING bells that ring with sad monotony have filled many women with regret Hats and rice and tears and farewells are an Arm in Arm Parade

In the days Mother knew best a girl's wedding was a kind of funeral where her daughter was the corpse and the altar a death chamber that Well happy moment followed the Thankful HAVE never felt—and stop holding her breath when the telephone rings

The old fashioned maid in the white quest to carry a fuchsia handkerchief to the church and shelter her fears at the thought of parting forever from her innocent lady girl is completely out of the picture Her modern mother feels that his wife's duty is to help her daughter find a husband and then get out of the way

She has at least [illegible] knowledge that [illegible] home her own [illegible] MAY [illegible]

[illegible] the prospective bridegroom [illegible] Heaven [illegible] make [illegible] HAVE

He does not expect [illegible] roasts and makes enough money to support his daughter in the style to which she is accustomed He is not too thankful [illegible] in-law loses [illegible] taking her off his hands Or perhaps a couple don't telegraph home to send them money to pay their fare back from the honeymoon

Getting a girl married doesn't especially mean losing her forever as we all may recall by reading accounts for a hundred years [illegible] to take her [illegible]

Just [illegible] Father leaves [illegible] Father leaves plenty of the wedding bells and flowers to the divorce [illegible] THAT'S [illegible]

Her wedding may no longer be the beginning of life for a girl—but at least it's the end of liberty and the pursuit of a will o' the wisp And her parents can slip peacefully once more into the comforting assurance that she'll be getting up to make the coffee at eight o'clock instead of just getting it from a party

In fact after all there is no sound so thrilling no telephone call so exciting as the sweet pealing of the wedding bells a flowers so fragrant as the veiled bouquet and no moment so glamorous as that in which a girl [illegible] the flower [illegible] altar [illegible] Dear Me

What a world of things TO [illegible] — [illegible] to WITHOUT [illegible] the whole [illegible] the climax to a woman's life story without which it will all be pretty flat and pointless

SCIENCE SAYS TOE NO WEATHER JUDGE

Pains in Feet Caused by Chrome Tanned Leather Shrinking

NEW YORK March 20—Science now reveals that you can't predict the weather by the human toe

When your shoes hurt and the old tootsies feel a twinge you can't wisely say It's going to rain Not and be right about according to science

From a thousand shriveled bills and valleys all over this great land we in almost hear the shout No Science is all wet this time

Many folks who pride themselves on living toes that are barometers of the weather are going to dispute this new scientific contention—to themselves at any rate They may have read with placid unconcern about Einstein's theory and said Oh very well—what of it but when science clamps down on their own toes that's another matter

Bulletin Explains

A bulletin of the American Chemical Society summarizing advances in scientific tanning announces that John Arthur Wilson noted Milwaukee leather chemist says that what gives so many folks wet weather pains in the toes is the shrinking of chrome tanned leather

With one concern for comfort and ease of manufacture than for valuing comfort makers of shoes use vegetable tanned leather for the soles and chrome tanned leather for the uppers of 9 per cent of all footwear says Mr Wilson who was recently awarded the Chandler Medal of Columbia university

When damp ass creeps into the dim sphere the soles resist it but the uppers shrink an average of 7% per cent of their area quickening the toes and causing them to tingle and burn Then the footsore pedestrian wisely predicts bad weather

Science Seeds

There you have it Science scoffs at the idea that you can predict the weather by your toes

Many elderly farmers in this country are said to secretly resent this allegation It is their theory is to be generally believed many reputations as weather sages are going to collapse with a resounding bang

Scientific men [illegible] about this from skeptical onlookers as well as city folk After the storm subsides maybe you can answer this question

How come farmers father's always [illegible] just before a storm

The Nazi [illegible] craze for color has not yet invaded all the railroads as it has in Germany The Rheingold new express from Holland to Switzerland through the Rhine valley has coaches painted a bright violet with window frames in cream and with silver gray roofs Great attention has been paid to interior decoration and the passenger is at liberty to choose the room that pleases him best

BUCYRUS COUNCIL DISCUSSES STREET

Board of Education Discusses Purchase of Land Near School

BUCYRUS March 20—Conditions in Bucyrus whereby the board of education is compelled to pay rental of $40 for a cinder walk across private land so that students from the east section of the city could attend the Major Kerstler school were discussed at last night's council meeting when Mayor Arthur Schuler recommended that an investigation be made of the advisability of constructing a new street leading to the educational institution

As a solution of the situation Mayor Schuler announced that two property owners Frank Schilling and Carl Bressinger have offered enough land to lay new streets through Hill st west and James st south under the condition that the city agree to lay sidewalks

During the discussion it was pointed out that many of the students were compelled to walk several blocks out of their way in order to use the present cinder path The ground rented by the board of education contains about a half acre

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 20—An early upturn in grain prices brought a resumption of liquidation and local selling which increased as bearish news developed during the session. Prices held to a narrow range early, with a good buying to offset the selling, but later the support was withdrawn and prices dropped sharply in the final hour of trading.

More favorable crop comment from the domestic belt and from foreign countries and the weakness in corn were depressing factors in wheat. Some of the late selling was credited to tired longs. Further large purchases of cash corn to come here from Kansas City led to selling of the futures in that cereal.

At the close wheat prices were 3-4@1c lower. Corn was 3-4@1 1-8c lower; oats unchanged to 3-4c down; rye 1-4c higher to 3-8c lower. Winnipeg wheat futures ruled a shade firmer than in the local market and closed 1-2@3-4c down.

Foreign Markets Firm

Firmness of Liverpool and Winnipeg caused a strong tone to the local market at the opening. The English market showed effects of a better demand for Argentine wheat and some buying by millers, cables said. The close was 1-4d up to 1-8d off.

On the whole trade in wheat was considerably lighter. Local sympathy was rather bearish following the previous day's decline, but there appears to be considerable reluctance to press the market in the face of the steady accumulation. The open interest advanced to another new high mark Monday at 118,970,000 bu.

Crop advices from the Southwest averaged favorable and Broomhall in his crop summary said that there had not been as much Winter killing in European countries as expected. While most of the crop observers report enough moisture in the Southwest for growth, Kansas and Nebraska need rain to prevent blowing, it is said.

Statistics Disappoint

Statistics were also disappointing to holders. The Canadian visible supply showed an increase for the week of 8,000 bu, compared with a decrease of 750,000 bu a year ago. The increase of 130,000 bu in world's available supplies as estimated by Bradstreets was also bearish.

Export demand continued slow and cash markets were not active. Cutting of wheat has started in the Punjab. Australia is still in need of rain. The break in prices has brought a recession in primary arrivals, but the local cash market was affected by bookings of 25,000 bu to come from Omaha.

Corn was firm at the start, mainly on light receipts and a lack of selling pressure. Trade continued light and mainly of a professional character. The liquidation of the previous day had found but little support and the market was still largely influenced by its lack of outside interest.

Shipments Small

Primary receipts were not large, but shipments continued small. There was early indication of a better shipping demand in the local market, but buyers were to cautious when reasonable offers were made from Kansas City.

Total bookings for the day were 95,000 bu, of which 90,000 bu was from Kansas City, the latter mainly for the leading local industry. World's available corn supplies decreased 154,000 bu for the week. Broomhall reports further pressure of Argentine corn abroad, but demand is also a little better due to breaking up of ice-locked harbors.

In the cash market wheat was unchanged to 1c higher; corn steady to 3c up; oats steady; rye easy; barley steady.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 29; corn, 99; oats, 18; rye, 1, and barley, 14.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

A few meat prices went to a higher level here today, as smoked sliced ham, weiners, necklone and pork chops registered 2 to 3 cent gains. All other prices were at a standstill.

Sliced ham went from 40 and 45 cents to 45 and 50 cents. Pork chops from 32 to 35 cents to 34 and 37 cents; weiners went up two cents on a pound, now standing at 32 cents and neck bones rose from 7 to 11 cents a pound.

With more moderate weather comes more of a demand for fresh green foods of every nature. Head and leaf lettuce are now popular served with a dressing.

The vegetarian customers will take advantage of the spinach now offered on the market to prepare several some what better, but healthful dishes. Eggs, vinegar, salt and pepper, and sometimes fried bacon are used to flavor, or rather, to counteract the flavor of this food.

Bananas, oranges, apples, grapefruit, tangerines, prunes and Tokay grapes are now available to furnish the fresh fruit for the table, and suggest several salads.
